Promoting justice for women

The Scottish Women's Rights Centre offers free legal information and advice to women who have been affected by violence or abuse.

SWRC can offer you information on your rights and on what to expect if you are engaged in the civil or criminal justice processes.

You can access the SWRC through the local legal surgery, by appointment. A trained support worker will also be available if you wish to speak with her following your appointment, she can also help to put you in touch with local support services if this would be helpful.

The SWRC also offers a free legal helpline every Wednesday between 1.30 – 4.30pm on Freephone 08088 010 789

Funded by The VOLANT Charitable Trust through Foundation Scotland

Funded by the Scottish Government through the Scottish Legal Aid Board
